A Better UI for Documents and Records

Example Documents and Records Search Made Easy. HCI Systems, Inc.

The days of wrestling through Asset Trees and cryptic CMS search engines is over. I remember searching for drawings back a few years ago that was absolutely frustrating. We actually had to budget hours and funds for our own document management person just to filter through the search results. BTW, thanks Bob. For one, using the same search engine for project documents as with archive documents is just not what you want to do. Anyway...........

The time for this frustration has ended. If you are on a project that is spatially distributed or uses PFDs you can use HCI's Google Map interface or our PFD interface to display your document and record searches like this. Mouse-over event shows what asset you are over and its basic information. On-click event lists the documents and records. Clicking on the document or record launches the viewer or App. QED.

Did I mention that this is web based software? Hmmm. Let that one sink in.
